Welcome to “The Craftsman Collection”, a unique group of reproduction Mission revival style furniture. The Mission style has its roots in the American Southwest. As Spanish Roman Catholic monks and nuns established missions among Native Americans, they built their own furnishings. Because of limited time, resources, and abilities, their work was rugged and simple, but sturdy, and strictly functional.

Many years later, during the Arts and Crafts Movement of the 1920’s, Mission style furniture was popularized by German American furniture artisan and bungalow designer, Gustav Stickley, who built and sold Mission style furniture in America.

Today, Mission style furniture has come full circle, as “in vogue” among contemporary interior decorators. Constructed from sturdy, dark-stained oak hardwood, its straight lines speak of simplicity, functional durability, and style. This refined, yet simple, all-American style is a wonderful blend of Spanish, Native American, and American cultures. A true reproduction series, “The Craftsman Collection” is “Here on a Mission”: offering years of durable service, in style!
